Police Radar Accuracy

Our system is NIST traceable and meets radar manufacturers' recommended radar certification standards, including performing the vital center frequency test. Performing a Center Frequency Test is the only way to guarantee that a radar is displaying correct speed results.

Keep radar units accurate and court acceptable!

- Certification using the same unit as the State Highway Patrol. We use the tamper-proof Vocar PRO-TECT Police Radar Certification System.
- All major brands: PRO-TECT police radar certification system can certify radar units that use the FCC approved radar frequencies for X, K, and KA-bands. Kustom Signals, MPH Industries, Decatur Electronics, and Stalker Radar are among the brands of radar units that use these frequencies.
- Our certification is a series of diagnostic tests performed on police radar equipment to verify the unit is functioning in accordance with the equipment manufacturer's specifications. Our equipment will work with any radar brand or model including all hand held and dash mounted units.
- Numerous state and local governments require police departments to perform periodic, comprehensive certifications of radar. This certification guarantees equipment accuracy and court acceptance when cases involving speeding violations are presented.
- Fast! System certifies radar unit in 15 minutes or less and certificates are printed on site or at our facility for each passing radar unit.
